WOMAN'S COLLEGE FURTHER ARGUED

Featherston Bill Under Consideration at Joint Committee Meeting.

HALSEY IS ITS CHAMPION

Eppe Hunton Denounces Proposition of College at University.

The Senate Committee on Public Instruction and Education and the House Committee on Schools and Colleges met jointly in the hall of the House of Delegates yesterday afternoon to consider the Featherston bill establishing a Confederate Memorial Woman's University at Lynchburg. A debate ensued, in which the proposed woman's co-ordinate college at or near the University of Virginia was brought in and was denounced by Eppe Hunton, Jr., for many years on the board of the University of Virginia, and now connected with the University of Virginia. Former Senator Don P. Halsey, of Lynchburg, spoke for the Featherston proposition, making an eloquent address. The amount of appropriation for the proposition had been reduced by the action of $100,000 to $200,000. He did not, he said, believe the university would cost as much as the co-ordinate college, since it was expected that States and Confederate organizations would help.
